

Charred Bars

Newspaper photograph and caption / UPI Telephoto

Playground Daily News, July 19, 1967, page 10; same page as Convicts, Guards Tell Of Fatal Prison Fire.

Source: photographs taken by Spencer Madrie of microfilm at the Fort Walton Beach library archives (user-provided provenance). Received through Telegram on September 26, 2026.

Source notes

Photo 11 provides the clearest complete photograph and caption. Reflections, screen scratches and microfilm texture remain visible. No glare removal, invented detail or generative restoration applied.

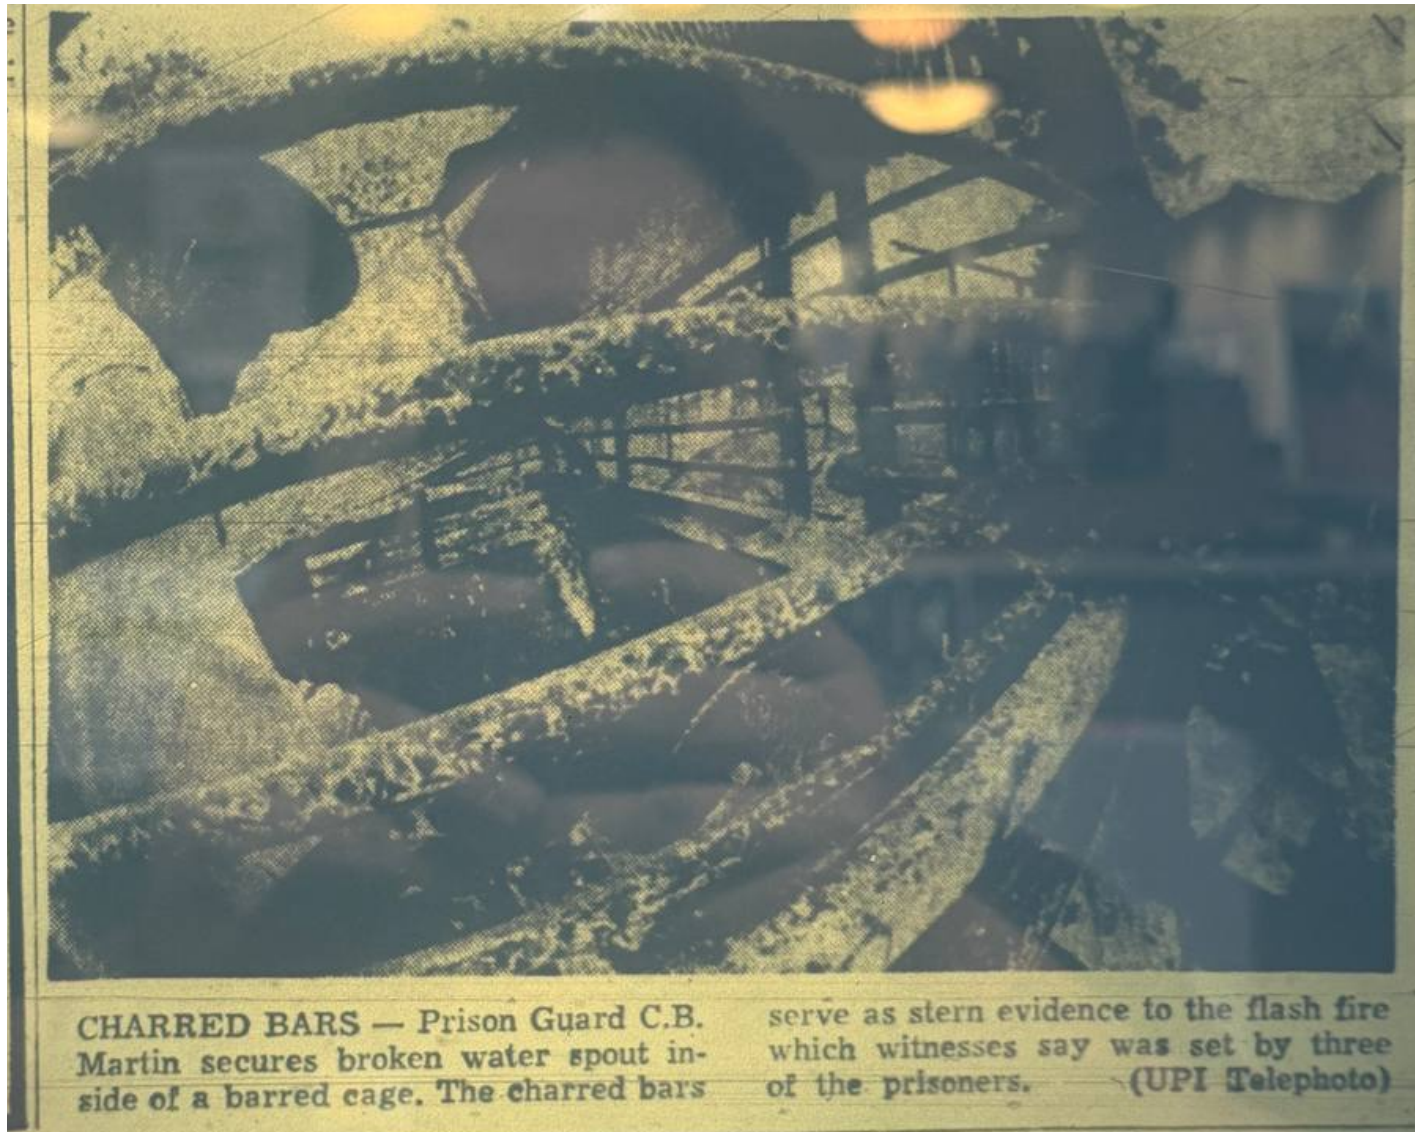

Reading transcription

Visually checked against the supplied photographs. Line-break hyphenation and spacing are normalized; brackets identify editorial flags. Historical wording, names and reported counts are retained. Source images govern if a transcription error remains.

CHARRED BARS - Prison Guard C.B. Martin secures broken water spout inside of barred cage. The charred bars serve as stern evidence to the flash fire which witnesses say was set by three of the prisoners. (UPI Telephoto)

Source view - photo 11

Best available photograph with its caption

CHARRED BARS — Prison Guard C.B. Martin secures broken water spout inside of a barred cage. The charred bars serve as stern evidence to the flash fire which witnesses say was set by three of the prisoners. (UPI Telephoto)

Source view - photo 10

Alternate view retained for comparison

